Living the principles

Throughout my time at UCP, what I've enjoyed most is the opportunity to work with individuals, to be a part of helping them grow—whether that's on the job, socially, or in some other way. I've worked with people who, once they experience the reality of competitive employment, find that they want to move toward greater independence in other aspects of life as well. I've helped individuals get their driver's license, so they don't have to rely on someone else for transportation. I even helped one guy start his own fly-tying business. What is key is their motivation.
